

Attacks of November 13: the shadow of a French jihadist behind the Bataclan

By analyzing the stories of survivors of the Parisian theater, investigators believe that some of the killers were in touch with an old acquaintance, from Drancy and gone to Syria in 2013.

Charaffe el-Mouadan had been indicted in 2012 with Amimour Samy, one of the terrorists Bataclan, for conspiracy to prepare acts of terrorism (CD and LP / Olivier Corsan.)

It is a track described as serious for several weeks explored by anti-terrorist police. The bloody attack followed a hostage conducted against spectators Bataclan November 13 (<http://www.leparisien.fr/faits-divers/videos-dans-l-enfer-du-bataclan-le-recit-des-survivants-15-11-2015-5279189.php>) could have been developed, or at least coordinated by a French already known to the intelligence services. The name of el-Mouadan Charaffe, 27, left Syria in late summer 2013, returned to the spirit of the investigators of the Directorate General of Internal Security (ISB) after hearing a survivor, trapped for several hours in the Parisian theater. Heard a few hours after the carnage, the witness explained immediately trying to hide by hanging on a window sill, while one of three suicide bombers had been shot by police. But one of the terrorists, describes small in size, sees him and ordered him to return to him. "The man was dressed in a tracksuit, remembered this valuable witness. He wore a beard and he gave me the impression of being the leadeur. He was calmer than his accomplice. They then placed us as human shields around a hallway and front windows. "

He attended the National Police Rifle Association

The hostage still remembers that the same terrorist negotiator asked the police to reduce his colleagues because they "had explosive belts and were going to blow everything up." The bomber exchange for nearly half an hour with the police before the final assault given by the research and intervention brigade (BRI). But moments before, the witness recalled hearing "the greater" of the two terrorists contact his accomplice to ask him if he "had called Souleymane ". "Little said no and they would handle it with their sauce, still says the witness. He also added that he had to speak in Arabic. After, there was a very tense discussion between them. I felt they did not know well ... "In reading the statements of this survivor Bataclan, investigators quickly made the connection with al-Mouadan Charaffe, also known as Souleymane. A reconciliation also confirmed by the presence of terrorists among Samy Amimour Bataclan ... Charaffe el-Mouadan / Photo DR The two men, childhood friends from the same neighborhood in Drancy (Seine Saint Denis), were indicted, along with a third sidekick, Samir Boughout in October 2012 for conspiracy to in Drancy (Seine-Saint-Denis), were indicted, along with a third suspect, Samir Bouabou in October 2012 for conspiracy to prepare acts of terrorism. At the time, El-Mouadan, Amimour Bouabou and nourished the project of winning Yemen or Afghanistan to lead the armed jihad. To do this, Charaffe el-Mouadan, described as the leader the trio, by his charisma, had followed during (<http://actualites.leparisien.fr/cours.html>) firing, since March 2012, within the National Police Rifle Association (ANTP) in the XVIII^e arrondissement in Paris, prior to recommending his two friends. (<http://actualites.leparisien.fr/paris.html>) During their hearing by the police ISB, the three candidates for the jihad had finally shown to have abandoned their original plan for the benefit of their installation in a Muslim village in Tunisia. "This track leading to Charaffe el-Mouadan is also supported by the Mostefai that Ismaël Omar was among the bombers Bataclan said one close to the investigation. This man went to Syria accompanied by Amimour and Bouabou. We also know that El-Mouadan and his two childhood friends came together after rallying the ranks of Daech. "

This mysterious Mr. Dahmani

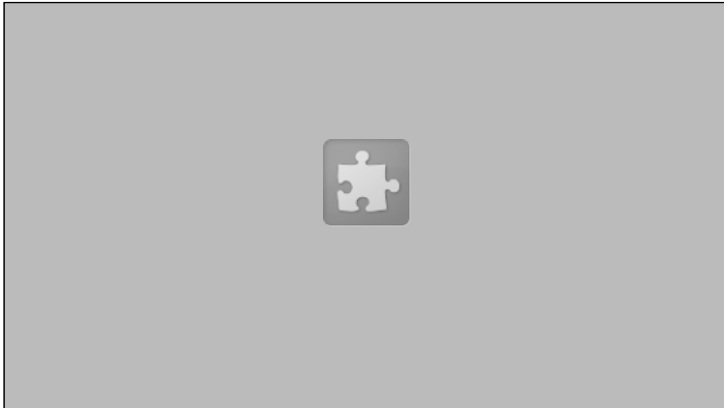

Who exactly is Ahmed Dahmani? French investigators are convinced that this man of 26 years is linked to attacks in Paris. On November 14, the day of the attacks, Dahmani takes a flight from Amsterdam to Antalya (Turkey), where he arrived at 11 am 48. But he was arrested two days later by the Turks, officially as part of the dismantling of a network smugglers. Dahmani, which is linked to three of them, travel with a false Syrian passport. Since his incarceration in the prison of Alanya, European police forces are trying to trace its course. On August 1, he boarded a ferry Superfast company since Bari (Italy) to Patras (Greece). Before making the trip in the opposite direction 4. Each time, he was accompanied by his friend Salah Abdelam

(orccc). Before making the trip in the opposite direction. Each time, he was accompanied by his friend Salim Abdesslam, survivor of the terrorist attacks, remain at large. Dahmani he knows other commandos? It's likely. In February, he was already in Antalya. Precisely the period when Hadfi Bilal, one of the suicide bombers the Stade de France, disappeared from circulation. EP
