Belgium has issued an international arrest warrant for a 'dangerous' man seen driving with Paris attacks suspect Salah Abdeslam two days before the massacre in the French capital.

Mohamed Abrini, 30, was filmed along with Abdeslam at a petrol station in Ressons, France on the motorway to Paris, in the Renault Clio which was later used in the attacks.

A police wanted notice said Abrini was 'dangerous and probably armed' and released a mugshot of him along with a series of pictures of him taken at the petrol station.

In a statement this evening, Belgium's federal prosecutor said: 'Two days before the Paris attacks, on 11 November around 19.00pm, Salah Abdeslam was filmed in a gas station in Ressons... together with a person who has been identified as Mohamed Abrini, born 27 December 1984.'

'The latter was driving the Renault Clio used two days later for committing the attacks.'

part in the Paris killings.

The police appeal comes as it was revealed today the ringleader of the Paris attacks returned to the scene of the shootings and was near the Bataclan concert hall while police were still trying to oust the gunmen who killed 89 people there.

Abdelhamid Abaaoud, who died last Wednesday when police raided a flat in Saint-Denis north of Paris, was captured on CCTV going into a metro station near where a car with three assault rifles inside had been abandoned.

French prosecutor Francois Molins said Abaaoud emerged from the underground at Nation station on the night of the attacks.

He added: 'The geolocalisation of Abdelhamid Abaaoud's alleged phone between 10:28pm and 12:28am confirms a presence in the 12th, 11th, and 10th districts, and notably near the Bataclan concert hall.'

'This allows us to think that Abdelhamid Abaaoud returns to the crime scenes following the attacks on terraces of the cafes and restaurants of the 10th and 11th districts while (special police) was still taking action at the Bataclan.'

Abaaoud (left) was instead killed alongside his cousin Hasna Ait Boulahcen (right) in a shootout with police before he could carry out the suicide bombing

Eleven days after the attacks that killed 130 people, investigators are still piecing together who did and when.

Molins said they had still to identify a man shot dead by police in the concert hall, the two suicide bombers at the national stadium who had passed through Greece in October and the third person to die when police raided the Saint-Denis flat.

This unidentified person is believed to have planned, along with Abaaoud, to blow themselves up in Paris' La Defense business district a week after the November 13 massacre.

The prosecutor said he 'can't be, and doesn't want to be more precise' on the details suggesting such an attack had been planned.

Information obtained on November 19 suggested 'that the two attackers - Abaaoud and the man we found by his side in the apartment - were planning an attack consisting of blowing themselves up at La Defense either on Wednesday the 18th or Thursday the 19th'.

He said the DNA of the person in the apartment, who investigators believe blew himself up, was found on one of the AK47 assault rifles in the abandoned car. The fingerprints of Abaaoud and dead attacker Brahim Abdeslam were on the other two.

This meant it was possible that the third man in the flat had also taken part in the shootings but this had not been confirmed, the prosecutor said.

Investigators had found a 9 mm pistol, fragments of grenades and two suicide vests in the St. Denis apartment.

FIFTH PERSON CHARGED: THE PARIS SUSPECTS CAUGHT 11 DAYS ON

A specialist terrorism judge has placed one person under arrest warrant for participation in the activities of a terrorist group and terrorist murders, Belgium's federal prosecutor said today.

This person is the fifth to be charged in connection with the November 13 attacks which left 130 dead.

The first two people to be charged in Belgium over the Paris attacks were Mohammed Amri, 27, and Hamza Attou, 20, who were accused last Monday on suspicion of helping Salah Abdeslam escape to Brussels after the carnage.

The last known sighting of Abdeslam was at a police check in Cambrai, France, in a Volkswagen Golf along with two people believed to be Amri and Attou, but he was not stopped.

A third person charged last Friday was identified by the prosecutor on Monday as Lazez A., a 39-year-old Moroccan from the Molenbeek district of Brussels, an area which has been linked to several of the suspects.

Lazez A. was charged with 'participation in the activities of a terrorist group and terrorist murders', while two guns and traces of blood were found in his car, the prosecutor's statement said.

Meanwhile a fourth suspect arrested in a raid on Sunday was identified as Ali O., who prosecutors said was arrested on suspicion of driving Salah Abdeslam after he was in Brussels, it said.

Meanwhile, Belgian authorities have charged a fifth suspect with terror offences relating to the attacks, it has emerged this evening.

The federal prosecutor's office issued an international warrant for Abrini, who is being tracked by both Belgian and French police.

It followed an earlier announcement that soldiers are to stay on the streets of Brussels for at least another week as schools and the metro remain closed over terror attack fears.

Meanwhile, staff working at the EU have also been warned to stay at home.

Belgian Prime Minister Charles Michel has warned that the terror threat remains 'serious and imminent' and that armed soldiers and police are to stay on patrol in the capital's streets until at least Monday.

Today schools in the area and the Brussels Metro remained closed for a fourth consecutive day, with shops and even NATO's headquarters remaining shut.

However, the metro is set to re-open tomorrow along with schools, however NATO headquarters and EU workers have been told non-essential staff should work from home.

The alert will be reviewed again on Monday.

Today in Brussels, an eerie atmosphere hung over the city with soldiers in camouflage patrolling everywhere from railway stations to EU institutions.

In the normally bustling historic Grand Place, a few bars and restaurants were open for business but they were struggling to find customers.

Zuidstation was also closed due to the current terror threat in Belgium. In addition NATO headquarters and EU workers in the city have been told non-essential staff should work from home

Some people also questioned the government's need to protect the public from a potential attack, with shop owners saying the shutdown was too extreme.

'It's not a very good decision,' said Esther Willems, assistant manager at the Galler chocolate shop in the heart of Brussels' city centre.

'In the last two days, we have only had about 10-11 clients compared with about 100 normally.'

Meanwhile the federal prosecutor's office announced that a man who was arrested during a police operation in Belgium on Sunday has been charged with involvement in the Paris attacks, the fourth so far.

Mohammed Amri, 27, and Hamza Attou, 20, were charged yesterday on suspicion of helping Salah Abdeslam escape to Brussels after the attacks, while a third unnamed person faces charges of aiding him when he reached the city.

It comes as the former head of Sûreté de l'Etat, the Belgian intelligence agency responsible for tackling domestic terror threats said officials repeatedly tried to overstretched their budget.

Alain Winants told the FT that a struggle for resources at the agency was only reversed at the beginning of this year.
